

beyond the curb: your guide to furniture reuse

purpose in every piece

At Wieland Healthcare, sustainability is not just a goal—it's a responsibility. Through our partnership with IRN The Reuse Network, we offer a solution for repurposing pre-owned furniture, extending its impact and supporting under-resourced communities worldwide. As healthcare environments evolve, surplus furnishings—recliners, sleep sofas, guest seating, tables, and more—can be redirected to qualified non-profit organizations rather than sent to landfills. What was once essential in the patient room continues to serve in new, meaningful contexts. Reuse isn't an afterthought; it's a thoughtful next step.

turning surplus into support more than sustainability, reuse is stewardship

Repurposing pre-owned furniture meets real needs in communities where resources are limited. It transforms surplus into support, allowing well-designed products to continue serving in places that need them most.

lower cost, greater purpose

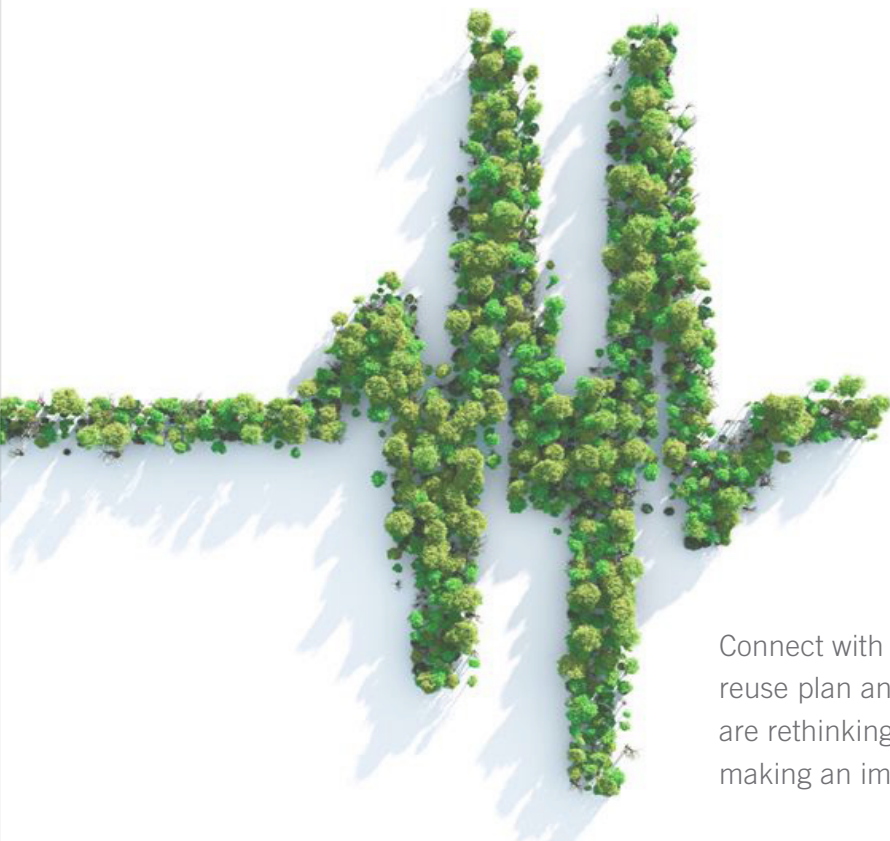

In many cases, repurposing is more cost-effective than traditional removal or storage. It's a solution that honors both your budget and your mission.

a meaningful environmental choice

Redirecting furniture keeps it out of landfills and reduces the need for new manufacturing—supporting LEED certification and long-term sustainability goals.

getting started is simple

With as little as 250 square feet of surplus furniture—roughly one box truck—you can begin a process that extends the life of what you've already invested in.

Connect with IRN to begin your reuse plan and join others who are rethinking surplus and making an impact.
